

Latest Management Fads Inc.

MEMO: 11th June 2008

IMPORTANT NOTICE

As you know, we are the leading entrepreneurs in management fads. One of those fads is team bonding through activities. The last twelve months has seen a dramatic rise in extreme sports among those bonding activities. In light of this, in seeing a financial opportunity, we started to manufacture parachutes as part of our executive toys line. These have sold steadily and far beyond projected figures. However, the following manufacturing defect has been brought to our attention:

Parachute only opens on impact.

Keeping in line with present industry standards of management fads we intend to deny all culpability. Should any television consumer show contact our company then we refer the individual employee who takes the call to consult the company manual entitled '101 Ready Made Statements of Denial of Responsibility'. Number 78 is the most appropriate because it tries to lay the blame on customer misuse whilst avoiding commenting on any known manufacturing fault.

If you have any difficulties then consult your line manager.

The Management.